

Welcome to the Melanoma Movement!

Australia has one of the highest incidence of melanoma in the world, and it's the most common cancer in young Australians.

We want to change this, and at Melanoma Patients Australia we have been working for 14 years towards preventing melanoma, and to supporting Australian's affected by it. But we know there is still a lot of work to do.

That's why we've started the Melanoma Movement, an easy way for all Australian's to play a part in taking a stand against melanoma, the most deadly form of skin cancer.

Everyone can do something – whether it's committing to get your skin checked regularly, or as a business or community raising awareness of skin cancer through a range of activities – there's something we can all take on that will help take another step in our movement against melanoma.

Click here for some ideas and resources for how you can take part in the Melanoma Movement, whether you're acting on behalf of a company or community group, or whether you simply want to do something for yourself.

Thank you for taking the first step to help prevent melanoma in Australia!

We hope you'll find something you can do, however big or small, to take a stand against skin cancer and join the Melanoma Movement.

A handwritten signature in black ink, appearing to read 'VB'.

Victoria Beedle
Chief Executive Officer, Melanoma Patients Australia

